- It is hoped that anglers will fly fish when water conditions are low. Spinning by those who are elderly or infirm excepted.
- Anglers are recommended to wear lifejackets.

Bag Limits (Fish killed)

- It is emphasised bag limits are not targets & anglers should only retain fish they will use.
- Anglers must return all brown trout over 18 inches.
- Anglers must return all sea trout after 30 September.
- The annual bag limit for Sea Trout shall be an overall total of not more than 1 from the River Don and 1 from the River Ythan. It is however recommended that all are returned subject to evidence that stocks are replenishing.
- The annual bag limit for Brown Trout shall be an overall total of not more than 12 across all Association waters.
- The daily bag limit will be an overall total of 6 fish. This figure may include not more than 2 Sea Trout, 2 Brown Trout and 2 Rainbow Trout.
- A weekly limit of 4 fish also applies at the Loch of Loirston.

The following are not permitted

- Fixed rod or set line, boat fishing, ground bait, live or dead natural minnow, prawn, shrimp, maggot, power bait, sniggering, bubble floats, gaffs, tailers, knotted nets. No Shooting.
- Sunday fishing except where permitted for brown and rainbow trout. It is illegal in Scotland to fish for salmon and sea trout on a Sunday.

Etiquette/ Behaviour

- No dogs allowed
- Use only permitted parking places and access roads. Do not park on access roads. Park with consideration. Do not cross fields. Close gates behind you.
- When river fishing anglers must keep moving a full 3ft step per cast irrespective of method of fishing.
- Please be mindful of anglers on the opposite bank.
- No angler casting upstream to interfere with anglers fishing downstream. Neither salmon nor trout anglers have precedence.

- Anglers must behave in a sportsman-like and gentlemanly manner at all times. Always act in a considerate manner to fellow anglers: -e.g. wading too deeply may affect other's fishing enjoyment.
- Anglers should only retain fish they will use.

Litter

- No litter discarded line or tape to be left on the banks or surrounding areas. Please take your litter home.

Return of catches

- Notification of catch information is obligatory on all anglers and should take place within 48 hours of all catches being made. It is important that all anglers adhere to the catch reporting rule.
- To report catches go to www.adaa.org.uk and log into the catch report under the name - visitor - with ID no 9999. You must also enter a valid email address.

Salmon Fishing Effort

- When fishing for salmon and grilse on Association waters, even just for an hour or so, you must record if you have not caught anything. The existing catch return system is to be used to do this. You are required to enter the species (enter salmon, blanked) the river/beat you fished without success, the method you fished (that is, fly, worm, or spin) and the weight as 0 (zero).

Sale of fish

- It is illegal in Scotland to sell rod caught Salmon or Sea Trout. No fish caught on Association waters can be sold.

Discipline

- Any angler breaching the rules will forfeit the permit issued and may be required to leave the river/loch.

The Fish

Fish retained for food should be promptly and efficiently despatched. All other fish should be released as quickly as possible. Fish should only be handled with wetted hands; they should never be thrown back in to the water but held facing upstream in running water until they swim free. Where "Catch and Release" is practiced de-barbed or barbless hooks are recommended.

It is also recommended that a single de-barbed or barbless hook is used when spinning no larger than a size 10.

Handling and returning fish

Treat fish with care and respect. If they are to be kept, dispatch them immediately with a forceful blow from a suitably hefty instrument. Fish to be returned should be held firmly on a clean, non-abrasive surface and unhooked using forceps. Fish should not be lifted, otherwise unsupported, by the wrist of the tail or damage to the spine may result. Similarly holding up fish by the gill covers may well inflict mortal injury and defeat the purpose of the exercise. The fish should finally be carefully supported in the water, head into the current, any adhering material lightly wiped off and held until it can swim off. This may take a few minutes).

Anglers are encouraged to return hen fish.

Anglers are recommended to carry a suitable knotted mesh landing net.
